25X1 2. The new cantonment on the northern edge of Campina on the west side of the road to Campinita, about 3 km north of Campina, had been erected about 1948/1949 and was occupied by Rumanian troops. Prior to September 1951, the entrance to the camp was to the north of the former Hasdeu castle. No details of the camp area could be seen from the road. During World War II, another cantonment was south of the area of the new cantonment in the so-called Istrate grove. This cantonment was still guarded by Rumanian soldiers in September 1951. Rumanian units were repeatedly seen marching on the road from this cantonment to the main road from north to south and near the new cantonment. The soldiers who wore olive drab uniforms were estimated at about 400 men. No heavy weapons were seen. Source noticed small two-wheeled box carts covered by tarpaulins which were drawn by men. The troops left the cantonments on the road to Ploesti (R 43/44/C 69) and in the direction of Doftana (R 45/X 42).
